CHANGE OF SESSION

They think they're playing. We know they're learning

Pre-primary

This session will look at how fantasy is important for imagination and creativity but it can also be a way to nurture social and emotional development.

Using a range of materials including the new Macmillan Education Pre Primary course Big Wheel, we will explore how a child can become immersed in the fantasy learning environment and engage in a social and emotional learning experience, that will help them understand feelings and meanings, and can be transferred to real life.

Yvonne Dalorto is a British trained teacher and headteacher, having worked in international and British schools in Spain. She is the author of Captain Jack and Dex Macmillan Early Learning Path (MELP) and a teacher trainer. Yvonne specialises in synthetic phonics and literacy development in Early Years and Primary education.
