TRAINING TO BE A Geisha

The white face, the dark eyes and hair, the blood red lips – both the Japanese and foreigners are fascinated by these beautiful and mysterious women. Makiko is training to be a geisha. Not many girls want to become geishas in Japan today. Makiko's parents wanted her to go to university, study medicine and become a doctor. But Makiko's grandfather paid for her training and bought the kimonos she needed. It's very expensive to become a geisha. You have to have a different kimono for each month of the year, and today a kimono can cost three million yen, that's about $25,000.

It's a hard life for a trainee geisha. She has to leave her family and move into a special boarding house called a 'maiko house'. Here, she has to learn traditional Japanese arts such as playing instruments, the tea ceremony, flower arranging, singing and dancing. She has to take a lot of difficult tests and exams. Only the best will pass all the tests and become geishas many years later.

We asked Makiko to describe exactly what a geisha does.

'A geisha has to serve customers and also entertain them. She has to sing and dance, and make conversation.'

Does she enjoy her life as a trainee geisha?

'I love it, but it's hard work. Sometimes I get tired of wearing the kimonos and I want to put on a pair of jeans and go to high school like a normal teenager. But I can't have a normal life now. I don't mind. I feel very lucky.'

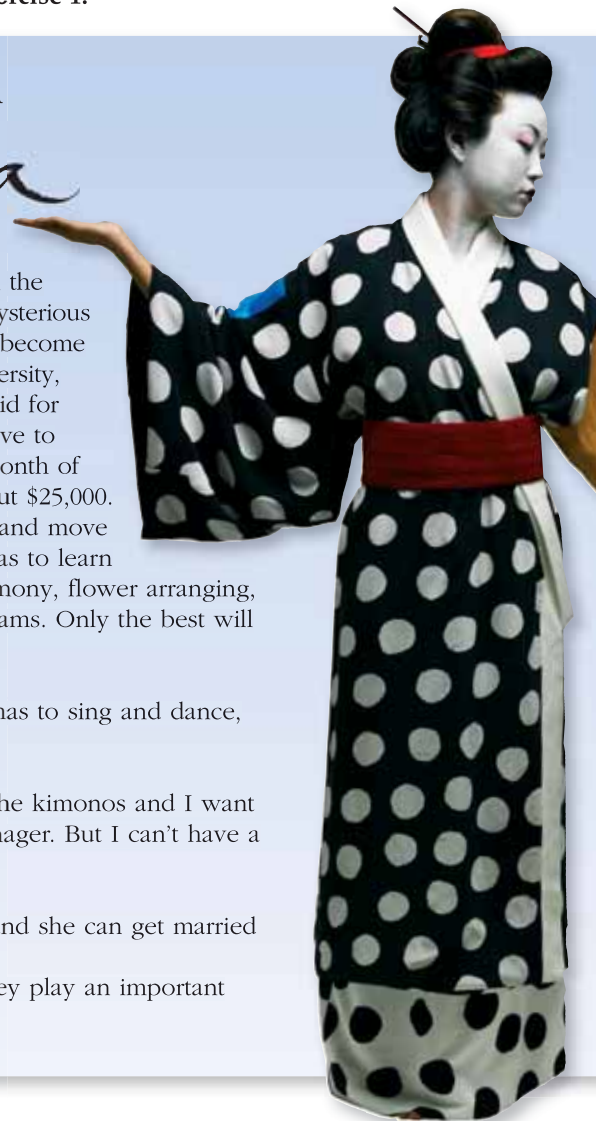

And what about later – can she have a family?

'Of course. A geisha can have relationships like anybody else and she can get married when she chooses.'

In Japan today there are fewer than a thousand geishas, but they play an important role in preserving Japanese culture and history.

3 What did your parents/grandparents want you to study at school? Did you follow their advice? Tell a partner.

'My parents wanted me to study science and become a doctor. I preferred languages and now I'm a teacher.'

| a) The grandfather | 1 'I've always had a very close relationship with my dad.' |

Three generations

Gordon – the grandfather (72)

'I think my son and my grandson have a lovely relationship – it wasn't like that when I was a boy. My father was a very strict man, we had to obey him without question.'

I had to walk five kilometres to school. There was no other way of getting there. At home we didn't have a television, so we had to make our own entertainment. I spent all my free time outside playing football.

But we couldn't play football on Sundays because we had to go to church.

I left school when I was fourteen and went to work in a bakery. That's where I met Mabel.

We couldn't bring girlfriends home in those days. We had to meet in public places. I suppose that's why so many people got married young. I was only nineteen, and Mabel was eighteen.'

Tony – his son (48)

'When I was growing up, my father was always at work, and when he came home, we couldn't disturb him, because he was tired.'

Because my father left school very early and regretted it afterwards, he wanted me to do well at school. I had to do my homework every night and I could only watch television at the weekend.

When I was eighteen I got a place at university. My parents didn't have to support me financially, because the government gave me a grant to study.

I didn't go home very often, even during the holidays. I preferred spending time with my friends, especially my girlfriends. In my last year of university I met Louise, and we got a place together. We had to get married when Louise found out she was pregnant.'

Scott – his grandson (19)

'I've always had a very close relationship with my dad and I don't have to hide anything from him.'

When I was at school, I had a lot of freedom. When I went out, I didn't have to come home at a certain time – my parents trusted me.

I'm at college now, and my parents have to pay for my studies, but I have to work in the evenings to pay for any luxuries I want.

I think it's wrong that my parents have to pay for my studies. I think colleges and universities should be free for everybody.

My girlfriend often stays with me at my parents' house, and I sometimes go and stay at her parents'. Both our parents think we should get married one day, but we're definitely not in a hurry.'
